THE LEGISLATURE.

The Legislature of 1910 is upon the eve of adjournment. The Woman Suffrage Bill has not passed, but no observer of legislation will question that it has made a more emphatic impression upon the Legislature and the State than it has ever made before. Evidences are numerous.

Mr. Phillips, the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, said publicly that the Committee had given more attention to the Woman Suffrage Bill than to any other measure which had come before it. Three times the Judiciary Committee of the House took a vote upon the bill. The minority desired to report it, in accordance with the wishes of the suffragists, even though the report should be adverse. The majority were opposed to making any kind of a report. They gave as their reason that men in the Assembly had begged of them not to let it come before the House, as they did not wish to go on record before their constituents.

On April 27th, Mr. Toombs, the introducer of the bill, and the assemblyman from the 17th District in Manhattan, moved to discharge the Judiciary Committee from further consideration of the proposed resolution to amend the constitution. A debate followed, and the ayes and nays were called. The majority leader, Mr. Merritt, said significantly, "I am against this measure, but to my regret I must admit that I believe women will vote in the near future."

Mr. William M. Bennet, of the 15th Assembly District, who is opposed to woman suffrage per se, said the women of his district wanted the ballot. This is a distinct compliment to the growing power of the Woman Suffrage Party, and in particular, to Mrs. Maud Nathan, the leader of that district.

The vote upon discharge stood, 46 for and 87 against.

The Senate Judiciary Committee took action on April 29th, and the vote stood two for reporting the resolution and six against. A motion will probably be made to discharge that Committee, and the ayes and nays called in the Senate.

One of the members of the House Judiciary Committee known to be favorable changed his vote. He was asked the reason and promptly acknowledged that he did so to accommodate Mr. Phillips, the Chairman. Mr. Phillips was so irritated when he learned that this fact had reached the women, that he made a public attack in the debate upon the women who had been doing the work in Albany, calling one of them by name. His fellow members pronounced the attack quite uncalled for.

Several members have shown their irritability in one way or another, and there is no question but that they would have been far happier had the women remained silent. But the day for silence and inaction is passed!

No Legislature in New York will be permitted hereafter to remain ignorant or indifferent to the demand of women for the suffrage. It would be far more in keeping with the desire of the women if the Legislature would perform this little act of justice without disagreeable incident; but since it shows no symptoms of being actuated by a sense of justice, but has shown unmistakable evidence of being in control of political machines which have nothing in common with justice, it behooves the women to arouse the spirit of the people of the State to demand democratic action.

The actual results of the winter's work, disappointing though they are, are clearly mirrored in the editorials of the Post and Times. The Post declares:

"Woman suffragists have every reason to be encouraged by their winter's campaign. * * Yesterday, they forced the Assembly to go on record. * * It is agitation that will finally force the issue whether for or against, and this winter has certainly shown a hitherto unequalled public interest in the question. The demand for speakers was greater than could be met by the suffragists, and there has been general recognition that the question has entered the domain of every day politics to stick. The Republican leader of the Assembly, although opposed to woman suffrage, recorded his belief yesterday that it is inevitable.

Says the Times:

"The Assembly has acted wisely in refusing to relieve its Judiciary Committee from further consideration of the Woman Suffrage Bill. * * No matter how many influential supporters the bill has, the time is assuredly not ripe for legislative action. * * The advocates of such a measure are venturing on dangerous ground. * * The home is now the basis of society, and when the home is destroyed, there must be chaos before some new order, of which only the haziest ideas are now entertained. * * Assemblyman Merritt is not alone, among the present opponents of a movement to weaken the social structure, in belief that women will vote in the near future. It may be that the suffragists will win IF THEY KEEP AT IT."

The Woman Suffrage Party begs to assure the Times, Mr. Merritt, the Legislature, and the voters of New York that the women will keep at it!

An anti-suffragist was overheard the other day to say that the suffragists have literally tired us all out with their activities this winter. They have given no one time to think of anything else. They have set back their cause twenty-five years, because they have made the public so tired of it. Certain legislators also assured us that our cause was being defeated through the continual heckling of members, who were tired of it.

When legislative opponents and anti-suffragists make common cause and become solicitous about the fate of our Woman Suffrage Bill, tenderly regretting the mistakes the suffragists are making, it is time for suffragists to shout "Hurrah!" The opponents may be tired, but the suffragists are not; in fact, the Woman Suffrage Party is like a lusty child that is just coming into its full power of strength: every nerve is alert, with anticipation of the struggle that lies ahead; it smells victory in the air! It will know no pause until its task is quite fulfilled.

HISSES.

Hisses are at best a very poor way of manifesting disapprobation. In this country, where meetings of all kinds are almost invariably quiet and well-mannered, they do not often occur. When hisses are heard, the offense is the greater because they are unusual. At the opening session of the National Convention in Washington, when President Taft came to give a brief address to the Convention, there were some hisses. No one seems to know whether these came from men or women, delegates or visitors. It was impossible, in a hall crowded to the utmost, with every inch of available space taken, to discover who the guilty hissers were. It was at best a most unfortunate event. The President of the United States is supposed to be immune from treatment of this kind; and in any event, he was the guest of the Convention and, as such, should have been treated by all other guests in the audience with courtesy.

Nevertheless, it was a curious absence of the sense of proportion which made the Associated Press telegraph the incident far and near as more conspicuous than any other incident in a great Convention. Queries have come from England, France and Germany, to ask just what did take place. Several newspapers have written elaborate editorials announcing that the incident proved the unfitness of women to vote. The connection is not apparent. When the President of the United States is daily cartooned from one end of our land to another; when he is attacked with every possible censorious epithet and invective, it is plain that he is not immune from expressions of disapprobation. If the few hisses in Washington indicate the incapacity of women to vote, then the columns of the anti-Taft press offer sure indication of the incapacity of men to deal tolerantly with political problems.

The suffragists regret the incident in Washington, and proper apologies were made to the President. Nevertheless the adverse comments which have been made by the press have not been sincere. They are merely efforts made to blind the vision of the public and obscure the issue.

The enfranchisement of women is a just cause, and it is bound to win. The world is beginning to realize that fact, and instead of arguments upon unsexed womanhood, deserted homes and neglected children, the opposition has adopted new tactics.

The Woman Voter is not designed to be a newspaper. It is too small for that. It is merely a Bulletin to announce what is coming, to explain policies and report the progress of local work. Every Assembly Leader and Election District Captain should subscribe and thus keep in touch with the Central Committee.

ATTENTION. DISTRICT LEADERS!

The following Assemblymen of Greater New York voted to discharge the Judiciary Committee from the consideration of the resolution proposing the submission of a woman suffrage amendment:

Mr. Oliver, 3rd Manhattan; Mr. Bennet, 15th, Manhattan; Mr. Toombs, 17th Manhattan; Mr. O'Connor, 9th of Kings, spoke in favor. Mr. Goldberg, 18th; Mr. Bates, 29th, Manhattan, spoke against.

THE PETITION

On April 18, the National Petition for woman suffrage was presented to Congress. It contained 404,825 signatures of which 25,000 were New York City names. Every State and Territory and Hawaii were represented. The petition was carried to the Capitol from the hall, where the National Suffrage Convention was in session, by the delegates in automobiles. The officers of the National Association led the procession and were followed by a line of seventy-five automobiles, three containing representatives of the press. One automobile decorated with the name of the State on yellow bunting was provided for each State delegation and they were arranged alphabetically in line. Additional undecorated machines voluntarily joined the procession, which was more than a mile in length. Arriving at the Capitol each delegation carried a part of its State petition to the Senate and a part to the House. The rules of the House permit no speeches on petitions or memorials of any kind, but the galleries were filled with interested spectators. For nearly two hours, the big rolls of petitions were seen coming in to the members, deposited in baskets and carried out again to the Committee rooms. In the Senate several brief speeches were made. The Congressional Record for the day devoted two pages to a record of the petition. The Senate galleries, not aware of the rules which forbid applause, manifested enthusiastic approval when Senator La Follette said in presenting the petition from Wisconsin, "I hope the day will come when it shall not be necessary for a great body of intelligent people to petition to Congress for rights of equal opportunity which ought to be permitted in this free country."

On the following day the Hearings before the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Woman Suffrage in the Senate occurred at the same hour. The addresses were based upon the petition. In the Senate Committee, educational and professional interests were presented, and in House Committee the plea of industrial workers was made.

The delegates agreed that the speeches at the Hearings were received with more apparent interest than at any previous Hearing, and many incidents demonstrated that the petition, the procession, and the speeches made woman suffrage the most talked of theme for some days. It is doubtful if a single Congressman failed to realize that the movement to secure Suffrage for Woman is a problem to be reckoned with, and that it will not always be put aside with a sneer.

MARGARET CHANLER ALDRICH,
Treas.

The 15th Assembly District of Manhattan has formed a Political Committee to keep in touch with the Democratic and Republican parties during the summer, when the usual picnics and clam-bakes of these organizations take place. Much effective work in breaking down prejudice can be done at these gatherings. Mrs. Frederick Nathan is the district leader.

Certain of our ardent suffragists who have been in the habit of receiving letters asking contributions for charitable objects are now sending replies like the following: "Dear Sir: As I have become actively engaged in the organization of the Woman Suffrage Party, I do not care to subscribe money in any other direction until we have accomplished the object of our campaign." If we are to succeed in our cause, we must make it our chief end and aim. Half of the charities now supported by private benevolence might well cease to exist, if women were enfranchised and awake to their duty of re-organizing society.

The street meetings held during April under the auspices of the Bedford P. E. League, at the corner of Bedford Ave. and Halsey St., Brooklyn, have been most successful; there has been always an audience of from one to two hundred persons, chiefly men. Mrs. Priscilla D. Hackstaff, Miss Ida Craft and others have spoken, using an automobile lent by Mr. and Mrs. Seaman as a rostrum. There has been always the most respectful and interested attention; and it is claimed that all the policemen in attendance have professed conversion to woman suffrage. The meetings will continue to be held through May, every Saturday night, at Jefferson Ave. and Broadway, at 8 o'clock. Collections have not so far been taken, but will be in future. Since these men on the street are voters, and must before long pass upon the question of political liberty for the women of New York, we must overcome our conservatism, and carry our gospel to them.

Miss L. L. Dock, leader of the Second Assembly District of Manhattan, reports that the women of the Mothers' Club have sent over fifty cards and letters to Assemblyman Aaron J. Levy, of the 4th Assembly District, and as many to Alfred E. Smith of the 2nd, and that they have had over twenty replies from these gentlemen. It is the first time that the women of these districts have been sufficiently aroused to desire to help the suffrage campaign.

The 18th Assembly District of Brooklyn is planning a series of suffrage teas, or porch parties, during the month of May. Mrs. Elizabeth L. Osborne is leader.

THE NAME
REMINGTON
means Typewriter and more for it means the sum-total of typewriter merit.

THE new Remington models 10 and 11 combine every merit associated with the word Remington, every merit associated with the broadest use of the word Typewriter, with fundamental improvements hitherto unknown to the users of the writing machine.
